

BUILDING SELF ESTEEM DURING CHALLENGING TIMES

This group is designed to broaden your understanding of how knowing your personality type and developing new mindsets can lift your self-esteem. Drawn primarily from Positive Psychology (the study of happiness) and Mindfulness (a way to reduce stress), our well-qualified and experienced facilitator Karen Venter will take you through several steps to encourage positive growth in this area. From a practical point of you, Karen will also present you with proven ways to identify and cultivate your personal strength and use them everyday, whether at home, at work, or during recreation.

The focus of the group is to create a confidential space where you can learn how to find a more contented way of being, bring and listen to feedback, and form new connections with like-minded people.
